MIAMI COPPER TO ADD TO ITS MILL CAPACITY

MIAMI, March 20—Miami Copper is back to about normal production from its mill and now is increasing its daily capacity from 5000 to 6000 tons. In contemplation are further extensions that will increase its capacity to 10,000 tons, or about that of the Ray Consolidated and half the neighboring Inspiration. This year's copper production is expected to be about 65,000,000 pounds.

FUNERAL OF TOMBSTONE PIONEER

The funeral of W. K. Mead, Tombstone pioneer, who passed away last Thursday after a brief illness, was held yesterday from the Tarbell Undertaking parlors, a large number of friends having come from different parts of the county to attend the last sad rites. The passing of Mr. Mead marks the passing of another one of Tombstone's first pioneers, and the following history of his career in Tombstone and Arizona, as told by Major Kelly of the Douglas International, who knew him since the early days, is fitting:

DEATH OF HON. W. K.

MEAD RECALLS STORY

The death of Hon. W. K. Mead at Tombstone yesterday removes another pioneer of this state, who came in the heyday of youth to take part in the work of taming the west and developing its industries. Mr. Mead came to Arizona prior to 1881, as in that year he was a member of the territorial legislature from Pima county and was prominent in supporting the bill for the creation of Cochise county. At this time Tombstone was on the very crest of its early day mining prosperity and soon after the legislature adjourned Mead moved there. Here he remained until after the election of Grover Cleveland, the first democrat to reach the presidential chair after the Civil war in this country. Cleveland lost little time in appointing democrats to all the federal offices in Arizona and among those selected was W. K. Mead to be United States marshal. Mead at that time was a fine specimen of physical manhood, young, vigorous, well educated and a keen observer of conditions and public men. He served during the first term of President Cleveland and for a year during the administration of President Harrison. When Cleveland was again elected president, W. K. Mead was again called to fill the office of marshal in Arizona. During both these terms Mr. Mead had many very interesting incidents to deal with. It was during the days of frequent train robberies in the west and Mead was marshal in 1889 when a United States army paymaster, named Major Wham, was robbed of $88,000 in gold when going to Fort Thomas from Fort Grant and took a prominent part in the prosecution of those arrested charged with the crime. After completing his last term as United States marshal Mr. Mead went to Alaska where he remained for several years. From the frozen north he returned to sunny Arizona, where he has lived a quiet life during the past ten years. Recently he was named as a member of the county selective draft board.

W. K. Mead was a man very determined in his principles and action, when he had the opportunity in the strict enforcement of law without any show of favoritism. His death will be regretted sincerely by a large number of friends throughout the state. The passing away of Mr. Mead recalls the fact that during his early residence in Tombstone he had for his friends and associates a number, who like himself reached honorable distinction in Arizona during later years. They were Hon. Mark A. Smith, now in the U. S. Senate; Ben Goodrich, who was foremost among the lawyers of the territory and state for many years and now a resident of Los Angeles; Col. William Hoosier, who was also rated for years as one of the big lawyers in the state and dying in Tucson some ten years ago; W. K. Street was another young lawyer in Tombstone in 1881. He afterwards moved to Phoenix, where he served for several years as a judge of the territorial supreme court; W. H. Stillwell, now of Phoenix, was among the Tombstone pioneers and he organized the first court in the county, he having been appointed as a supreme court judge.

All these men made good in Arizona and are entitled to have an honorable record placed to their credit in the early-day history of Arizona.—Douglas International.

BUSINESS MEN FORM
COUNTY DEFENSE BODY

BISBEE, March 21—Representative business men from the entire county will assemble this afternoon at the Warren District chamber of commerce in the Copper Queen hotel, at the call of the Cochise county board of supervisors, to organize and set on foot the Cochise county common council of defense, a branch of the state council of defense. Thomas E. Campbell, former governor, and representative of the state council, arrived in the district last night to assist in the organization work, and to bestow the common council charter for the state council. The meeting will convene with members of the board of supervisors attending at 3 o'clock.

Others prominent in state affairs who will attend the meeting and take an active part in assisting Cochise county in launching their common council are Harry E. Trille of Phoenix, state manager for the war stamp campaign; J. N. Gaines of Tombstone, county war stamp manager, and several other visitors in the district. Business men of Douglas and members of the Douglas chamber of commerce, Tombstone representatives and others from county points, have signified their intention of attending the meeting.

The organization meeting was called by the board of supervisors at the request of the state council, and has the recognition and commendation of President Wilson. The meeting will elect officers, name a publicity and other committees, outline a partial working program and take up other work incident to the organization of an active campaign to assist this part of Arizona in its prosecution of the war.

Commendation of the movement was received yesterday by Chairman Dwight B. Heard, of Phoenix, from President Wilson, who had been informed of Arizona's efforts to extend the work of this useful arm throughout the state through the organization of the common council.

GOVERNOR WILL GO TO THE CAPITAL

PHOENIX, March 21—Governor Hunt yesterday accepted the invitation of Secretary Lane to meet with other governors and state officials in Washington on April 3 for the purpose of making plans to further the exclusive use of the English language by all the people of state as a matter of patriotism and to aid in Americanizing the country.

On his return back to Arizona, the governor probably will stop at Camp Funston for a visit with the many Arizona boys at that big cantonment. It was asserted at the state house yesterday. Practically all of the Arizona boys who have been drafted into the service are at that camp.

WILL GO TO CAMP ON 31ST

Wire instructions received in Tombstone this afternoon by the local board from Phoenix that the 27 men ordered to be sent to Camp Funston under a recent order are to be entrained from Tombstone on the 31st of this month, which is Sunday. This means that those who were listed to go several days ago by the local board will be notified at once to report on that day for entrainment, and the cards were sent out by the board this afternoon.

They had been held up on orders from the adjutant general. Following is the list who will go as announced several days ago, with possibly a few changes to be made by the 31st, since according to a new ruling all men in class 1 who are harvesting or assisting in harvesting crops are not to be sent to camp until they have completed their work:
